Elizabeth G. Menaghan is a Professor of Sociology and the Center for Human Resource Research at The Ohio State University. She earned her Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1978. Her research focuses on social stress and mental health and on the effects of work experiences and family composition across generations, particularly on how the quality of mothers’ employment may influence their children’s cognitive development and emotional well-being. Her research has been recognized with awards from the American Sociological Association and the National Council on Family Relations. She is currently an Associate Editor for the Journal of Health and Social Behavior.